WAR UNNECESSARY TO RUSSIA

It concludes "the Soviet union is guided by cold considerations of self-interest based on Marxist analysis. The real deterrent to armed aggression by Russia — if she has that in mind — is the knowledge that certain acts by her will lead to a hazardous war, while she has an alternative policy by which she may develop her vast dominions safely on her own lines. Therefore the best hope of security for western Europe is for us to go resolutely ahead with the planned reconstruction aided by American dollars, and the say to Russia "we obviously offer no menace to your security or to that of your allies. If you attack us you will be invloved in a world war which you cannot want. We shall obviously resist aggression. Your own chief centres of industry will also be destroyed by atom bombs at an earlystage of an interminable long range war with the U-S.A. The alternative should appeal to you as preferable. In peace we offer you a market as envisaged in the Paris response to the Marshall plan. We can absorb your surplus products and supply you with machinery and other manufactured goods without which progress of your own reconstruction will be seriously delayed. We suggest that on this basis you should reach with us an agreement to live and let live on each side in the part of the progress of your own reconstruction will be seriously delayed.
